Use protons, neutrons, and electrons to build elements. As the number of protons, neutrons, and electrons changes, information such as the name and symbol of the element, the Z, N, and A numbers, the electron dot diagram, and the group and period from the periodic table are shown. Each element is classified as a metal, metalloid, or nonmetal, and its state at room temperature is also given.

“Build An Atom” Simulation – Build an Ion Learning Goals: 1. Draw models that show atomic structure. 2. Use information about the number of protons, neutrons, and electrons to identify an element, its position on the periodic table. 3. Predict how changing the number protons and electrons will change the element and its charge.

For the second activity students go up to their lab stations and complete the PhET computer simulation "Build an Atom". This activity allows students to build atoms. I have questions that they answer on a worksheet to ensure that they understand what happens to atoms when you add protons, neutrons, and electrons. Although we have not yet discussed ions, this allows students to begin to see what would happen so it will make more sense when we refer back to it later in the
