A triskelion or triskeles is a motif consisting of a triple spiral exhibiting rotational symmetry. The spiral design can be based on interlocking Archimedean spirals, or represent three bent human legs.. The triple spiral is found in artefacts of the European Neolithic and Bronze Age with continuation into the Iron Age especially in the context of the La Tène culture and related Celtic traditions.

You may find that some Greek texts do use quotations marks, and others may use a conventional English semicolon instead of the raised dot to indicate a major pause. Some Greek texts use lots of commas, and some use them sparingly. The important thing to remember is that the punctuation is almost all added by modern editors!
